

Teenage ADHD Research Opportunity

Researchers at the University of Kentucky College of Arts and Sciences are seeking individuals to participate in a research study for teenagers who menstruate and may have ADHD. This study will collect data on estrogen levels as they relate to ADHD symptoms in adolescents.

Teenagers may be eligible if they are:

- between 9 to 17 years old and menstruate
- concerned that they might have attention, overactivity, or impulsivity problems (ADHD)
- NOT taking any hormone-based medications

For more information, parents contact:

Michelle Martel, PhD
adhdlabuky@gmail.com
859-472-4172

An Equal Opportunity University

www.UKclinicalresearch.com