 Markey
Cancer Center

Researchers at the University of Kentucky are evaluating a program developed by our research team, cancer survivors, and oncology providers. The program is called TRAC-AYA, and is a brief, 4-week health promotion program designed to help survivors increase their overall health and reduce future cancer risk. TRAC-AYA is done over phone or video-calls. To honor your time for participating in the study, you would receive gifts cards for up to $315.00.
